SCHOOL OF NURSING

The Moses Taylor Hospital Training School for Nurses was organized in 1894 to prepare young women for the profession of nursing the sick.

The purpose of the school is to offer young women interested in nursing, professional education, which will prepare them to give intelligent and skilled nursing care, to teach others the principles and practices of health, to function intelligently as health workers in the community and to maintain their own physical and mental health.

The school admits and retains only those young women who possess high personal standards of living and who have demonstrated their ability to maintain a high level of scholarship.

The school is registered in Pennsylvania and its graduates are eligible for registration and for membership in the American Red Cross.
